Rights and AI declaration

I make the following declaration for every work I submit to the EiD THEME DESiGN Partner Program:

- I created the work myself, own the necessary rights, or hold written licences that permit commercial distribution, promotion, technical adaptation and sublicensing through the selected stores.
- I will identify third-party material, including fonts, music, photographs, trademarks, characters, templates and stock assets, and will provide evidence of the applicable licence when requested.
- I will clearly declare whether generative AI was used, identify the relevant provider or model where known, describe the extent of AI assistance and not present AI output as exclusively human-made.
- I have the necessary releases or another valid legal basis for recognisable people, private property and personal data contained in the work.
- The work will not knowingly infringe copyright, trade marks, design rights, privacy, publicity or other third-party rights and will not contain malicious code, hidden tracking or unlawful material.
- I will preserve source files and licence evidence, cooperate with proportionate rights checks and promptly report any later-discovered restriction, claim or error.

This declaration does not transfer ownership by itself. Any distribution licence is governed by the Partner Terms. False or incomplete declarations may lead to rejection, takedown, suspension, withheld disputed amounts or termination, subject to applicable law and a reasonable review.
